TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Happy Boy.—We cannot tell you anything about the origin of the horse fly.
Big Injun.—Your story is not available.
Your hero is a bald-headed man, and yet you have the Indians scalp him. The incident is too bald.

Shoemaker.—Small feet are not a sign of aristocratic blood. Many of the queens of Europe wear old-fashioned No. 6's.
Texas.—Yes, there are red-nosed people who are strictly temperate; but, as a general thing, it will be well to look out for red noses.

Question.—Yes, good butter ought to keep a long time. But in a family where there are many children it don't.

Arm-chair.—A boy who will deliberately take an eight ounce tack in his grandfather's chair is wicked enough to burn the whole town.
Salutatus.—You had better write to John S.
C. Abbott, "the historian." If Phily abused his wife he never mentioned it, and most everything is mentioned by Phily.

Lena.—It was very wrong for the young man to promise to take you to the circus and then go off to the dog-fight and forget all about it; but you can't trust human nature these days.

Septimus.—We do not know how long an elephant can live without food. Buy one and try the experiment.

Red Cloud.—Ben Butler has not written any dime novels that we know of. The rumor probably arose from the fact that he would make a good hero for one.

Boone.—We believe that Daniel Boone was a red-headed man, out historians differ, and it would be difficult to find the coroner who sat on him.

Eva.—We have heard that Wisconsin husbands stayed at home and did the washing and let their wives go to the circus, but there's a good many outrights about that State.

Information.—Bar-rings were worn a great many years ago—as far back as the palmy days of Rome, but those ancient women didn't have any dollar stores to run to.

Inquirer.—We cannot tell you who first invented the practice of hanging people to lampposts.
It was some genius of the long ago, and we agree with you that the practice is not practiced half enough.

HE WANTED WATER.—The Boston Commercial Bulletin tells a good story of a verdant one who was a passenger in a railroad express train, and became thirsty.

"Where's that 'ere boy with the water can?" he queried of his next neighbor.

"He has gone forward to the baggage car, I suppose," was the reply.

"Wall, d'ye s'pose I can git him back here agin?"

"Certainly," said the other, "you have only to ring for him," and he nodded toward the bell line that ran above their heads.

No sooner said than done. Before any one could prevent it Rustie had seized the line and given it a tremendous tug. The consequences were at once obvious; three shrill whistles were heard, half a dozen brakemen ran to their posts, and the train came to a standstill with a suddenness that startled half the passengers with astonishment, and caused every man near a window to hoist it and look out to see what was the matter.

In a few minutes the conductor, red and excited, came foaming into the car to know what had pulled the bell rope.

"Here, mister, this way; I'm the man," shouted the offender, drawing all eyes upon him.

"You!" said the conductor. "What did you do it for?"

"Cos I wanted some water."

"Wanted some water?"

"Sartin; I wanted the water boy, and my pardner here in the seat said I'd better ring for him, as we do at the hotel, an' so I yanked the rope. Will he be along soon? An', by the by, what in thunder be you stoppin' for?"

The shout of laughter that greeted this honest confession was too much for the conductor, and he had to wait until he got his train under way before he explained the mysteries of his bell-rope to his verdant customer.

A SERIOUS CALLING.—"A certain gravity," says Dr. John Hall, in his Uta lectures on prognosis, "is expected, through a flight human instinct, in ministers. Not that the particular attitude of the facial muscles is of any spiritual significance, or any way on the other, but men feel that, while we are handling grave and most serious matters, we ought to be serious.
Did you ever see the pilot take a ship through a perilous passage? He is grave. I have seen the surgeon's knife drawn round the limb, where an error of an inch would have been a terrible mistake. He was grave. I have heard a conscientious judge weigh, and set out to the utmost fulness, the evidence in a murder case, as earnestly bent on putting everything fairly, as if his own life depended on the issue. Any levity here would be out of place; and, on the same principle, by the average of mankind, gravity will be looked for in us, who deal with matters of life and death, and speak for God."

POWER OF THE IMAGINATION.—The Uta Herald tells the following story of an old lady in Philadelphia, Jefferson county, who acquired the habit of using morphia: "After using it for relief from the pains of a tumor, no person could induce her to give up the poison.
Her family carefully united in a deception, substituting carefully prepared potato starch in morphia bottles. At first she thought the supposed drug an inferior article, but her physician, who was in the secret, assured her that it was all right, and she was satisfied. She continued to use the article for fifteen years, and to the day of her death, and could not do without it, never having learned the deception. At one time when she was ill the physician gave her Dover's powders, but she could not rest after taking them until she took her starch-morphia."
